

DeFacto - Submissions now open!

Have you recently written an interesting article? Your new book is about to be published? An event is coming up or you would like to share an analysis of a current event? DeFacto is the right place for you!

The publication languages on DeFacto are German, French and Italian. English-language articles can also be published if a version of the article is also available in a national language. Articles on DeFacto are a maximum of 5000 characters long and may include illustrations.

Share your research findings with a wider audience, write an easily accessible article, a summary of your latest publication or prepare an exclusive analysis on a current topic. You too can disseminate your (political) science findings!
